The performance work Shades of Tango was produced by 45 Downstairs in Melbourne in 2003. It is a short work, around 55 mins - plus extra time for open discussion with the audience, and has a cast of only three: Faye Bendrups, Guillermo Anad and one other actor. It requires little space to be performed and can be done simply without theatre lights if need be. An excerpt from the introduction: "Shades of Tango is a poetic journey through time, memory and absence. Set in the city of Buenos Aires, the piece conjures up ghosts of other times, interweaving tango texts and symbols with contemporary poetry, original songs and references to exile or disappearance". Guillermo and Faye will be performing some poetry excerpts from this work as part of their guest seminar at the University of London soon.
